G2GLNARC

(Case called)

THE COURT: Good afternoon.

I reviewed your joint letter and your draft stipulations, and I'm also in receipt of NARL's proposed briefing schedule and BP's opposition. As you know, I just passed to both sides a proposed stipulation taking into account what both sides had proposed. I'm happy to hear you out on it now. I don't want to waste this opportunity since you came in here in the rain to talk about it, but I did want to see if we're able to reach some kind of joint stipulation.

So I'm happy to talk about it now. If you need a few more minutes, I'm happy to give you more time. If you need more than that and you need to talk to your clients, I'm happy to give you the opportunity to do that as well.

So why don't I rephrase the question. Why don't you tell me what you think is most productive today and what you think you're in a position to do.

MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, on behalf of the plaintiff, on an initial review, on my initial review, the stipulation does seem fair. And subject to discussing it with my client, it seems like the direction that the client may very well want to go.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

All right, Mr. Balber.

MR. BALBER: Thank you, your Honor.

G2GLNARC

1 On my initial review, the stipulation does not seem
2 doable.

3 THE COURT: Tell me why.

4 MR. BALBER: Sure. The predicate for our objection,
5 your Honor, is that we cannot and should not be prohibited from 6 acting pursuant to all the rights and obligations under the 7 contract. And, respectfully, I think there's a little bit of a
8 tension between the first paragraph and the second paragraph.

9 And, by the way, this is all with the caveat that I
10 have zero authority whatsoever and I may send this to my client
11 this afternoon and they may say this is the best deal in the 12 world, jump at it.

13 THE COURT: Point to the exact wording that you're 14 thinking about.

15 MR. BALBER: Paragraph 1 indicates that the parties
16 will continue to perform their respective obligations under the 17 contract. And paragraph 2 says that we reserve our rights
18 under the contract at this time. Now, one of the rights under 19 the contract is to terminate based upon certain circumstances.
20 I'm not sure how to reconcile our commitment to perform with 21 the reservation of rights which include the right to terminate.

22 So what I don't want to end up obviously doing at all
23 costs, your Honor, is to be in a situation where we are at risk
24 of running afoul of the order, the stipulation order. So
25 that's my primary concern.

G2GLNARC

1 If I can just take a minute to update your Honor on
2 where we are, and I don't want to avoid this question because I
3 really truly appreciate your Honor's effort to try to find a
4 solution. And we want a solution as well, but a couple of 5 updates.

6 Most importantly, since last we met, two of the three
7 arbitrators have been agreed upon. Those two arbitrators now
8 have until March 8 to appoint the third arbitrator. Once the 9 third arbitrator is appointed, this Court has -- and I'm going
10 to say this respectfully -- has no business adjudicating this 11 preliminary injunction whatsoever. There will be a panel
12 appointed under both the agreement and the AAA rules. That 13 panel can deal with any issues concerning preliminary 14 injunctive relief. I have plenty of cases to cite if your 15 Honor is interested.

16 THE COURT: March 8 is the date the third arbitrator
17 will be recommended, appointed?

18 MR. BALBER: March 8 is the last date by which the two 19 arbitrators who have already been appointed can appoint the 20 third. If they can't agree by March 8, AAA will appoint the 21 third.

22 THE COURT: So it could be we have our third
23 arbitrator by March 8, but it could be that we don't.

24 MR. BALBER: If they don't agree and AAA appoints, it
25 will be a week or so after that is our expectation. That's

G2GLNARC

1 point one.

2 Point two, your Honor, is this preliminary injunction
3 application was filed on January 19. It's been a month. The 4 world hasn't come to an end. We haven't terminated the 5 contract. We haven't stopped delivering crude oil. There
6 continues to be no necessity for the Court to do anything now,
7 including enter a stipulation that's going to create a
8 circumstance whereby nobody is quite sure what our rights are 9 and we're both at risk of running afoul of the Court's order.

10 And the last point which I think is an important one,
11 your Honor, in their preliminary injunction application papers,
12 they say it would take them three weeks to find an alternative
13 source of crude oil in the event we terminate the contract.
14 Well, putting aside that they're relying on letters that were 15 sent in April of 2015, it's now been well in excess of three 16 weeks since they filed their application, which would be ample
17 time for them to have found an alternative source of a crude
18 supplier without the need for this Court's intervention.

19 I really again am going to suggest what I suggested a 20 couple weeks ago which is that the Court punt and let's keep 21 this in abeyance. We're going to have an arbitration panel in 22 the next three weeks or so. If we terminate the contract, 23 Mr. Burchfield can hop on a plane, be up here. I'm sure your 24 Honor will be extremely receptive to hearing him. But why are 25 we doing this now and why are we invading the parties'

G2GLNARC

1 contractual rights when there's no necessity.

2 Thank you, Judge.

3 MR. BURCHFIELD: May I respond, your Honor?

4 THE COURT: Sure.

5 MR. BURCHFIELD: On the first point, two of the three
6 arbitrators have been appointed. By March 8 is when those two 7 arbitrators are supposed to recommend a chair. Then that has 8 to go through the vetting process at the AAA. That arbitrator
9 will need to fill out the appropriate conflict of interest
10 forms, and the parties will have I think 14 days to review it.
11 So March 8 is by no means a hard deadline and it could very 12 much, as your Honor suggested, go well beyond that.

13 Second point. The law is very clear, and the leading 14 case in the Supreme Court is the United States v. W.T. Grant
15 case. The leading case in this circuit is the R.C. Bigelow v.
16 Unilever case that an assurance of continued compliance by 17 someone faced with a preliminary injunction request is not good
18 enough. If I may read briefly from the R.C. Bigelow decision.

19 THE COURT: Sure.

20 MR. BURCHFIELD: This is at 867 F.2d 102 at page 106
21 and I have copies. And if I may hand you a copy, your Honor.

22 THE COURT: Sure.

23 MR. BURCHFIELD: I'm at page 106, about a third of the 24 way down the left-hand column.

25 "Nevertheless, it is also well settled that voluntary

G2GLNARC

1 cessation of allegedly illegal conduct does not make a case
2 moot. In such circumstances, there may very well remain a
3 controversy to be settled since a defendant is free to return
4 to his old ways. While this case may well be moot if the 5 defendant can demonstrate that there is no reasonable
6 expectation the controversy will reoccur, the defendant's
7 burden in this regard is a heavy one."

8 In the next column, the right-hand column, about 9 midway down, "We note that a disclaimer of intention to revive
10 allegedly unlawful conduct does not suffice by itself to meet
11 defendant's heavy burden in order to render the case moot."

12 That's what we have here is without even submitting an 13 affidavit, your Honor, counsel is telling the Court BP is going 14 to behave itself and if it doesn't, we can come back. What the 15 Court has before it is a fully sufficient motion for 16 preliminary injunction with legal brief and with affidavits
17 indicating that there is a potential for imminent irreparable
18 harm to my client. And all we're getting from BP is please
19 come back when it's even more imminent.

20 The Court has made a reasonable proposal. Subject to 21 running it by my client, this seems like a reasonable proposal.
22 And the Court does indicate that BP is not giving up its rights
23 under the contract. BP has never been specific either with my 24 client or with this Court as to the circumstances under which 25 it thinks it can walk away from this contract. What it has

G2GLNARC

1 done, however, is refuse to off-load crude oil. It has refused
2 to pick up refined products from my client until we demanded
3 under threat of legal action that it continue. And it has 4 never given us the assurances of adequate performance that we 5 are due under the New York U.C.C. Section 609 and 610.

6 Final point, your Honor. He says that NARL could find 7 a new supplier within three weeks. If there's a typo in our 8 papers, I apologize for it. Mr. Amin's affidavit,
9 paragraph 16, is quite clear. Let me read that for the record.
10 This is the attachment to our original motion. It says in our 11 estimates, it would require at least 90 days and possibly 12 longer to locate, negotiate, and secure an alternative supply
13 arrangement. That's not three weeks, that's three months. And 14 I think that's being optimistic.

15 It's not a situation where when we filed this 16 complaint we immediately began looking for an alternative
17 supplier. NARL has a contract with BP, and what we're entitled 18 to is assurances of performance. If they won't give those 19 assurances of performance, we request the Court to step in and 20 provide that.

21 THE COURT: Let me just make one more proposal with 22 respect to the joint stipulation that I drafted based on what 23 you had provided. If I changed what I gave you as follows, let 24 me see if this is acceptable to defendants and, of course,
25 plaintiff.

G2GLNARC

1 BP Products New York America, (BP), and NARL Refining
2 Limited Partnership, (NR), together, the parties, will continue
3 to preserve their respective rights and obligations under -- 4 and then keep everything else in that paragraph the same and 5 then cross out No. 2 and then have everything else the same.
6 Does that present a problem? Does that make it closer for 7 defendants? Would plaintiff have a problem with that?

8 I understand both of your positions. I'm trying to 9 balance plaintiff's right to seek relief that it does with an 10 effort to preserve the parties' resources, judicial resources
11 in not litigating a motion that may not be necessary. So I'm 12 just trying to balance that.

13 So does that change things for either side,
14 recognizing that you have to go back to your clients.

15 MR. BALBER: Just so I make sure I have it right, will 16 continue to preserve their respective rights and obligations.

17 THE COURT: Right.

18 MR. BALBER: I'm comfortable passing this along with 19 the goal of hopefully bringing us to a resolution. I can't 20 make any guarantees. But the prior iteration I wanted to be 21 really candid with the Court that I didn't feel comfortable
22 even advancing that with the client. This I'm comfortable
23 having a conversation about.

24 THE COURT: Mr. Burchfield, do you have any objection
25 to that language?

G2GLNARC

1 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, I just don't think that
2 does it. I'm not quite sure what it means, preserve their
3 respective obligations. If preserve is a synonym for perform,
4 I think perform is more textually accurate. If it means
5 something different than perform, I'm not quite sure what it
6 accomplishes.

7 THE COURT: Can we think of a different word then?

8 MR. BALBER: This is exactly the problem, Judge.
9 We've now hit on the crux of why we can't agree.

10 Let me add one more point to why perform just doesn't 11 work. We had a number of force majeure events that have 12 occurred between the parties over the past months, etc. What I
13 don't want to happen is to have there be another storm or a 14 fire or a tanker that runs aground or something like that that 15 prevents one side or the other from performing and then we're 16 in the context of, okay, they have not performed, are we in 17 contempt of court.

18 And I ask this rhetorically, does the Court want to be 19 adjudicating the question of whether a storm in the Atlantic
20 Ocean justified the failure to perform or whether it was a 21 pretense or whether when they wanted to send us what they have 22 to send us in terms of refined oil they have a strike at the 23 plant and they can't do it. That's why we have an arbitration
24 panel that, as I said, is going to be appointed in a matter of 25 weeks. Anything that's going to go to the question of the

G2GLNARC

1 parties' performance or nonperformance squarely belongs in 2 front of that panel. And to have this Court be required to
3 adjudicate those questions is just -- I can't imagine the Court
4 being equipped to do that based upon what's going to be before
5 the Court on the record.

6 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, if I may, those examples
7 sound like exactly the sorts of questions this Court can 8 adjudicate in the context of a contempt hearing. I don't think 9 it's necessarily the case that if a ship were lost at sea my 10 client would run in here and seek contempt immediately.

11 What my client has observed on these force majeure
12 declarations is a declaration that a specified ship that was 13 supposed to deliver cargo to the refinery was fogged in in 14 Houston when in fact that ship had only days earlier been in 15 New York harbor. There's no way that ship could have delivered 16 the cargo under the rules of physics and time and space because 17 there was no way it could load the cargo and get to Houston and 18 back in time to deliver it. That's the sort of thing my client
19 is very concerned about.

20 BP has threatened three times -- twice in writing and 21 once orally -- to terminate this contract. It has repeatedly 22 invoked -- twice since they filed the arbitration demand and 23 before we filed this complaint -- force majeure. And in one 24 instance they tried to reject a cargo that had been 25 independently inspected and approved. These are the sorts of

G2GLNARC

1 things that are going on and my client is very concerned about
2 whether performance is going to continue and that's why we're
3 here in this court.

4 MR. BALBER: Mr. Burchfield has now without question
5 proven my point. He will come back and seek contempt and your 6 Honor will hold a hearing, an evidentiary hearing, in which 7 we'll have Al Roker testify about the weather in Houston and 8 we'll have a shipping expert testify about safety on the seas
9 and an oil expert testify on what can be delivered or can't.
10 Is that what this Court needs to be doing when we'll have a 11 fully constituted arbitration panel that has been formed for 12 the precise purpose of investigating, adjudicating, hearing
13 evidence on the performance of these contracts in this esoteric
14 world of crude delivery and refinery.

15 THE COURT: Here's what I'm going to do. I'm going to 16 ask my law clerk to make the changes that I proposed. And I
17 just ask you both to go back to your clients and see if it's 18 agreeable by saying that you preserve. And, again, if you can 19 think of a different word that should replace preserve the 20 respective rights and obligations, let's see if that language
21 is sufficient without the word perform and you'll let me know.
22 And if not, I'll make a decision on your requests that are 23 pending.

24 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, I'm sorry, may I?

25 THE COURT: Yes.

G2GLNARC

1 MR. BURCHFIELD: Where we are is that there is a fully 2 sufficient motion for preliminary injunction pending. If we 3 reach a resolution on this stipulation -- and based upon the 4 dialogue that has occurred, I'm not optimistic, but I'll 5 certainly take it to my client and make a go of it. But what
6 we would like to do is move this forward by getting a response
7 from the defendant.

8 THE COURT: Okay. So why don't we do this. Why don't 9 we set a timetable for you to talk to your clients and get back
10 to me on this proposal. We're revising it. And in the 11 alternative, I will set a briefing schedule on the preliminary 12 injunction.

13 So how much time do you think you need to talk to your 14 clients and get back to me?

15 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, I think we can respond to 16 the Court -- it's Tuesday -- we can respond by the close of 17 business on Thursday.

18 THE COURT: Okay.

19 MR. BALBER: I think that should be sufficient, your 20 Honor. Thank you.

21 THE COURT: If that's the case, if you get back to me
22 by the end of business on Thursday, what would your proposal be 23 with respect to how long defendants should have to respond?

24 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, as you may remember, when 25 the defendants opposed our proposal, they proposed that they

G2GLNARC

1 respond by February 11, last week. So I would think it's fair
2 to give them until next Monday. What is the 19th, is that 3 Friday?

4 THE COURT: Today is the 16th, right. The idea behind
5 this stipulation is -- and, again, it is entirely up to you and 6 your clients. There's no pressure whatsoever from me. I'm 7 just trying to be helpful. But if it's not, so be it. But 8 that essentially only gives them a day between the time when 9 they've discussed this with their client with hopefully, you
10 know, an effort to resolve this matter without litigation. So 11 I think we need to give them a little more time than that to 12 just focus on trying to resolve it amicably and, if not,
13 responding.

14 MR. BURCHFIELD: How about next Monday, the 22nd.

15 MR. BALBER: That's not enough time for us, Judge.
16 Again I have to ask the question where is the fire? It's been 17 pending for a month. We haven't terminated. I will guarantee
18 that if we terminate on Friday, I'm going to have a very angry
19 judge to contend with. So let us have a week from Friday?

20 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, I can't forebear saying 21 the pendency of this suit probably has gotten noticed within 22 the structure of BP. I don't think BP while this case is 23 before the court and our motion is live that BP is going to do
24 something foolish like terminate the contract. If this case is 25 dismissed and our preliminary injunction motion is withdrawn,

G2GLNARC

1 I'm not quite as confident.

2 THE COURT: Well, part of what was in the proposed
3 stipulation is that there was a withdrawal of the application
4 but that the action is stayed. So the action stays with me.
5 So if there is some reason to come back to me, there will be no
6 delay. You'll come right back to me. I'll have a full
7 understanding of the time sensitivity involved. But, again,
8 that's entirely up to you.

9 MR. BURCHFIELD: I understand.

10 THE COURT: So why don't we say that in the event that 11 you're unable to reach a stipulation, defendants will respond
12 by the 24th, okay, which is Wednesday. And then any reply will 13 be Friday, February 26, okay, because I know you want to move
14 this forward.

15 MR. BURCHFIELD: Yes, your Honor.

16 THE COURT: So we're going to hand this out to you and 17 then I will hear from you by the end of business on Thursday.

18 MR. BURCHFIELD: Thank you, your Honor.

19 MR. BALBER: One more administrative matter, your 20 Honor.

21 THE COURT: Yes.

22 MR. BALBER: I hate to raise this but I don't believe
23 Mr. Burchfield is admitted to this court. I don't believe a
24 pro hac vice motion has been filed. I haven't wanted to raise
25 this, but this is our second appearance. There's nobody else

G2GLNARC

1 here.

2 MR. BURCHFIELD: I believe it has, but I'll check on 3 that and I'll rectify that issue if necessary.

4 THE COURT: Check on that. There are lots of King &
5 Spalding attorneys in New York who can assist with the process.
6 So you'll let me know if that's an issue.

7 MR. BURCHFIELD: Thank you.

8 THE COURT: Thanks. Stay dry.

9 My deputy is looking on the docket and she thinks a
10 motion for pro hac vice was entered.

11 THE DEPUTY CLERK: January 20.

12 THE COURT: So we're all set on that front. Thank you
13 though.
